Set in the heart of Kenya 2007 Post-Election violence, Diary of an Internally Displaced Person is a novella that sheds light on the aftermaths of the violence that shook Kenya's social, economical and administrative structures to the pillar. It is a must read as it is an innocent, untainted commentary of how violence can turn lives inside-out forever, shattering dreams, killing hopes and unknowingly destroying an intellectual learner, as told by the author who was a victim on the losing side of the violence.
