Meeting the Challenge of Social Problems via Agent-Based Simulation: Post-Proceedings of the Second International Workshop on Agent-Based Approaches in Economic and Social Complex Systems

Social sciences are moving to the next stage. One of the promising methodologies is agent-based computer simulation. In a series of workshops on Agent-Based Approaches in Economic and Social Complex Systems (AESCS), ground-breaking studies of complex economic and social phenomena using computational approaches are being presented and discussed. This volume contains papers selected from presentations at the AESCS '02 held at the University of Tokyo, Japan, on August 16, 2002. The workshop was the second in a series of Pacific Rim activities in interdisciplinary areas of social and computational sciences, the first workshop having been held in Shimane, Japan, May 21-22, 2001. The objective of AESCS workshops is to promote worldwide multidisciplinary activities in multiagent computational economics, organizational science, social dynamics, and complex systems. AESCS brings together researchers and practitioners from diverse fields, such as computer science, economics, physics, sociology, psychology, and complex theory, in order to understand emergent and collective phenomena in economic, organizational, and social systems. AESCS also provides an opportunity for discussion of the effectiveness and limitations of computational models and methodologies for the social sciences. The second AESCS workshop focused on the importance of cumulative progress in agent-based simulation in the social sciences through discussions of common tasks, standard computational models, replication and validation issues, and evaluation and verification criteria for the results.
