The Ruined Garden is a book about a family of tiny, fictitious bugs that live on a Brussels Sprout plant in a vegetable garden owned by “humans.” The book centers on a rambunctious, naughty, little boy bug named Mickey, who although tiny is convinced he is as big and strong as any human. Because of this idea, Mickey gets himself into a couple scrapes, one in which he is nearly killed.

The garden is also home to many other critters such as Tiffany, a beautiful iridescent butterfly; Big Jay, a blue jay that warns the garden inhabitants of possible danger - including the presence of the humans; Shannon, the orphaned fawn; and a cast of other lovable characters.

Although the wisest of the creatures in the garden had warned all inhabitants to be careful while the humans were on vacation, their carelessness ruined the garden. The humans were appalled at their return and set out to destroy all the critters. A last-minute tip by a neighbor saved their lives and their homes. The critters and humans lived harmoniously after all!
