A book of judgment or perhaps a Cinderella story? Actually, a bit of both, but with no felling judgments, only unadulterated truth in action based on personal experiences. A book about 'choice'. We are faced with many options on any given day; some easy while others turn us into a confusion of sun-softened sticky pink bubble gum. Why do we seem to get most of these choices so horribly wrong? Hitting sandbanks of disappointment, we sink in sackcloth and ashes not considering that our circumstances resulting from these so-called 'wrong choices', are not really as destructive as Hurricane Helga. The positive and negative, the spiritual versus the physical is all supernaturally designed to form a perfect balance while we explore its validity. The writings, from the enigmatic pen of a once gullible introvert in search of rhyme and reason in a world that had gone completely mad, had discovered Faith and Hope instead. She has since discovered the Passion of the Christ, and will take you on a fun-filled voyage of discovery sixteen times over. Finding your own worth among a hodgepodge of worthless circumstances, Hope will carry you over minefields of broken dreams. It is certainly not a pious religious dogma but a free-flowing spiritual illumination that sheds its light on the dark aspects of life lived as a believer in Christ and none like you have ever read before. It is a tapestry weave loomed and knotted by many vivaciously colourful elements that lend merit to that which is regularly deemed of little to no value A Spirit-Filled Human Life.
